Convention Gets Platform Tonight

Republican Document Praises Coolidge's Record, Proposes Study of Tax Revision, Reaffirms Racial Equality and Religious Freedom, Favors All Law Enforcement.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 11.—The Republican platform, on which President Coolidge will go to the polls in November, was completed early today by a "planning committee" of administration leaders for ratification by the national convention during the day.

Laboring all night long, fifteen men drafted the platform in its final form and throughout they closely followed the recommendations of President Coolidge. The document, to be confirmed first by the full committee on resolutions, probably will be presented to the convention about 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The dominant issues were federal economy—reference to the saving of billions of dollars by the Republican administration in taxes and governmental expenditures—and endorsement of the Harding-Hughes-Coolidge World Court proposal.

The men who drew up the platform were: Charles B. Warren, of Michigan, chairman; Lewis H. Smith, of Colorado; Senator Frank R. Gooding, of Idaho; Representative Martin D. Madden, of Illinois; Senator James E. Watson, Indiana; Bert C. Kulp, of Kansas; Speaker Frederick Gillett, of Massachusetts; Governor Arthur M. Hyde, of Missouri; Ogden L. Mills, of New York; E. J. Adams, of Ore.; William S. Vare, of Penna.; Senator Peter Norbeck, of South Dakota; R. B. Cragger, of Texas; Senator Reed Smoot of Utah and Henry W. Anderson of Virginia.

Majority Adopted Each Plank.

Each plank was written into the platform by a majority vote of the committee and throughout the night, the discussion was frequently broken by angry debate. Three of the decisions created a storm of dissension in the committee room. Angry voices floated out into the corridors where a score of newspapermen waited in ceaseless vigil all night long. These were upon agriculture, the adoption of an anti-Klux Klan plank and a decision not to recommend the Mellon plan of tax reduction to the nation.

Economy Plank Adopted Joyfully.

Opening their session at 8 o'clock last night, the committee first disposed of the economy features of the platform. In this plank, the platform pointed out that the Harding-Coolidge administration saved $2,000,000,000 in two years, reduced taxes $1,250,000,000, and the national debt $2,500,000,000. It was adopted joyfully.

No Dissension on World Court.

An hour later the president's wishes on a World Court plank were adopted without dissension. The plank gave hearty endorsement to the Coolidge plan for joining the court while disavowing any and all intention of mingling in affairs of the League of Nations.

Mellon Plan Breaks Harmony.

The first break in harmony came when a proposal was made to endorse the Mellon plan. Instead of approving the treasury head's program, the committee wrote a plank proposing a commission to study the question of further tax revisions. This was the plank advocated by Senator Fess, of Ohio.

Other Planks Pass Quickly.

As the hours slowly drifted past, an immigration plank, without reference to the Japanese exclusion act, a party harmony plank urging election of a regular Republican house and senate and a plank condemning misfeasance and malfeasance in office, but ignoring specific mention of the senate scandals, were adopted. Prohibition issues were disposed of with a demand for law enforcement and other planks with equal facility.

Plank for Religious Freedom.

The second real fight came on the anti-Klux Klan plank. At one time the platform builders apparently faced a deadlock. There was much shouting and thumping of tables. The plank, finally adopted, reaffirmed the racial equality under the constitution and closed with a "guarantee for religious freedom." It was proposed by Representative Ogden Mills, of New York, who warned the committee, the Republican party would lose New York state unless it were adopted.

The opposition was led by Senator Peter Norbeck, of South Dakota. "This plank will irritate the Klan," said Norbeck. "I propose we either fight them or let them alone."

His suggestions were voted down, this being the only plank upon which a roll call was taken.

Agriculture Equal With Industry.

The agriculture plank, left to the last, also caused an angry row. Senator Gooding, of Idaho, and Norbeck, condemned the Republican party for indifference to the farmer and warned it would lose the west unless federal aid were promised the farmers.

"We'll approve the emergency tariff act," Senator Watson, of Indiana, offered as compromise. "That won't do," Gooding shouted. "I'm sick of this dodging."

Eventually harmony was restored by adoption of a plank pledging the Republican party to extend every effort to place agriculture upon an equal economic footing with industry.

Work Ended Near Dawn.

Just at dawn, the meeting broke up. A dozen weary eyed men, white from fatigue and staggering from lack of sleep came out of the smoke filled room.

"The platform is finished," said Chairman Warren. "It has met the full approval of the drafting committee, and not one minority report will be filed against it by any member here."

"We plan to present it to the convention by 3 o'clock this afternoon, after the full committee on resolutions has endorsed it. We hope to have the convention approve it before midnight so that tomorrow's session may be devoted entirely to the nominating speech and the selection of Presidential and vice-presidential nominees."

Convention Goes In Recess Until This Evening

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Convention Hall, Cleveland, Ohio, June 11.—Another admonition to Republicans to retire from congress the insurgents who have played havoc with administration policies and to elect in November a congress that is Republican "in principle as well as in name," opened the Republican national convention meeting in its second session here today.

Insurgents Won't "Go Along."

It was declared with great earnestness by Frank W. Mondell, of Wyoming, permanent chairman of the convention, who looked upon the gavel laid down by Representative Theodore Burton of Ohio, the convention keynoter. His short speech simply emphasized Burton's warning against any third party tendency within the Republican party, and ascribed whatever failures have met the administration program in Washington to the insurgent members of the party who, combining with the Democrats, have refused to "go along" with the president.

Elect Republicans, Only Remedy.

"Every serious fault of recent legislation and every failure to complete and round out a satisfactory legislative program," Mondell said, "could and would have been avoided with a dependable Republican majority in congress. The one certain and assured remedy for such a condition is the election of a congress, Republican by a goodly majority, both in name and principle."

Mondell briefly and glowingly reviewed the Republican accomplishment under Harding and Coolidge and coupled with it, a short savage criticism of the Democrats.

Democratic Attitude Described.

"If the American people were prepared to forget," he said, "the wholly indefensible record of the Democratic party in earlier days, they could not overlook the fact that the most recent record of the Democratic party is one devoid of a single redeeming feature; of scandalous mismanagement, of unwise and indefensible policy in control and utter lack of definite principle or policy, save that of muckraking and obstructions."

Convention Late In Starting.

The convention was late in getting under way. A heavy shower delayed the delegates as they were leaving their hotels.

It was 11:02 when the opening gavel fell and the convention opened with the usual national anthem.

The convention adopted a resolution to send a greeting of "respect and affection" to Uncle Joe Cannon at his home in Illinois. The resolution was proposed by Representative Graham, of Pennsylvania, who said it was unanimously adopted by the Pennsylvania delegation.

While waiting for the reports from various committees, the delegates were entertained by a band.

Committee Reports Adopted.

The convention speedily adopted the report from the committees on credentials and permanent organization. The report of the latter committee produced the first division of the convention—a chorus of "noes" being cast against the committee's decision to seat as delegates two native Porto Ricans, and Robert H. Todd and deny the same to E. Mont Kelly, former governor-general of Porto Rico. The noes came from Kelly's friends but they were greatly in the minority.

Colonial Baseball Club Needs Financial Support

High Cost of Players and Bad Weather Have Brought About a Condition That Calls for Prompt Response From Kingston Men Who Have Foresight and Public Spirit.

The following letter is being sent out to a number of public-spirited people in Kingston and vicinity:

The Colonial Baseball Club of this city was organized four years ago and has played through three successive and successful seasons, and has been entirely self-supporting, never requesting the aid of the business nor professional men of this city and county.

This year the club is much stronger than in previous years, and, in fact is the strongest baseball team in the country excepting the American and National League teams. This was proven by their defeat of the "Doherty Silk Sox" in two games on Decoration Day, which team had previously defeated five of seven big league teams. The salaries of the players on the Colonials are very high, many of the players being of big league calibre.

We have investigated and find that due to the enormous salaries and also the fact that the weather has been so inclement, the club has lost money and will be unable to continue.

Considering the advertising alone which this club has brought to Kingston, saying nothing about the enjoyment derived by hundreds of our citizens in witnessing the games, and the hundreds of visitors attracted to the city, we feel that we as a committee are going to test the civic pride of our city and vicinity and ask them to aid us in seeing that the Colonial Ball Club is held together and not allowed to disband.

After careful consideration we came to the conclusion that if we secured 150 people to subscribe $10 per month for June, July and August, we would be able to keep the Colonial Ball Club intact, and you are one of them.

Therefore, we earnestly solicit your aid and request you if possible to send your check for $30 to Henry Bernstein, treasurer, Hotel Stuyvesant, Kingston, N. Y., who will take charge of this money. If this is impossible we ask that you send your check for $10 for the month of June to Henry Bernstein, treasurer, at the above address and on the 1st day of July and August similar amounts.

We feel sure that you will want to hold this wonderful ball club together and continue to give Kingston the same advertising it has had in the past.

We earnestly assure you that unless they receive help from the citizens of the city and county the club will be forced to disband. We ask you to respond at once and trust and believe that your civic pride will make your answer favorable.

Very truly yours,

Westerners Say They Don't Want Hoover or H'rbord

Forty Delegates Organize in Effort to Swing Convention to Kenyon, Borah or Western Agriculturalist—Not Insurgents, They Say.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Cleveland, O., June 11.—A dramatic, eleventh hour effort to swing the Republican National Convention entirely away from any vice-presidential candidate picked by the conservative eastern crowd of administration supporters was launched full tilt in Cleveland this morning just before the convention met for its second day session to adopt the platform.

It was engineered by an influential group of delegates from Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas and the Dakotas, who served notice on the easterners they do not want Herbert Hoover or James G. Harbord, but rather they demand some one of the stripe of Judge William S. Kenyon, or Senator William E. Borah, who they claim is closer to the needs of the agricultural west.

The northwestern delegates met in the Hotel Winton this morning in a general session. The Winton is blocks away from the Cleveland Hotel, where there was an all night meeting of cabinet officers and eastern senators, who narrowed the race down to Hoover, Harbord and Curtis. The meeting in the Winton was more than merely blocks away from the Cleveland crowd in spirit.

They denied they were insurgents and pointed in proof of their assertion that none of the Wisconsin followers of Robert M. La Follette were invited to attend. They are merely going to fight for a western man "for the good of the party," they said.

State Senator Charles T. Cessna, one of the delegates at large from Iowa, was the moving spirit in the gathering.

Resentment over the all night meeting in the Cleveland Hotel participated in by Secretary of War Weeks, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and other influential eastern men, was in the background of the westerners' move. There were no "farmers" in the Weeks-Mellon gathering, nor any one to speak for them.

Delegates from Iowa, Minnesota, the two Dakotas and Kansas, formed the nucleus of the gathering, but those attending declared they had been assured of support from delegates in other agricultural states—Nebraska, Illinois, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Utah, Missouri and Indiana.

They figured on a delegate strength from these states of approximately 250—nearly half of the 555 required.

Instead of being a move toward La Follette insurgency, the westerners described their meeting as a move away from it. They declared unless a vice president is nominated who is well and favorably known to the farmers between Ohio and the Rockies, La Follette will sweep the west with his independent ticket in November, and take enough votes away from Coolidge either to defeat him outright or throw the election into the house of representatives.

"It is not insurgency," said Cessna. "It's sense."

The westerners' meeting lasted an hour and was attended by approximately forty delegates.

Stanford MacNider, a delegate at large from Iowa, and formerly national commander of the American Legion, was named temporary chairman.

It was announced another session would be held at 3 o'clock.

"DAPPER DAN" BEGINS 9 MONTHS' SENTENCE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, June 11.—"Dapper Dan" Collins, Beau Brummel of international prisoners, left the tombs today to begin nine months of service on Welfare Island. He was handcuffed to a negro and a white criminal.

The journey to the island was halted long enough for Collins and his fellow convicts to have their measurements, pictures and fingerprints taken at police headquarters.

WARREN'S RADIOS WERE A BIG ATTRACTION.

Charles A. Warren, the sporting goods dealer, had two radio receiving sets on the sidewalk in front of his store entrance today and crowds stood around listening to the playing of the organ and the speeches at the Republican national convention at Cleveland. The organ music and the speeches were heard very plainly.

To Try Chicago Slayers Aug. 4

Date Fixed for Trial of Leopold and Loeb—Loeb's Birthday—Leopold Had Planned Sailing for Europe.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 11.—Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, confessed slayers of 13 year old Robert Franks, will go to trial on charges of murder and kidnapping for ransom on August 4, next.

Arraigned this morning before Chief Justice Caverly, of the criminal court, the youths pleaded not guilty and heard the date of their trial set. The largest crowd ever jammed into the criminal court witnessed the arraignment.

Fifteen extra deputies from the sheriff's office were on duty at the criminal court building and battled continually to keep in order the mob of persons that strove to gain admission to court.

So great was the pressure of the mob as it milled about the corridor that the doors to the court room crashed. A call was sent to the sheriff's office for seven additional deputies.

It is Richard Loeb's 18th birthday and the day for which Nathan Leopold, Jr., had engaged passage to Europe on the Mauretania.

Coolidge Spent Day Quietly

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, June 11.—Anyone who has a mental picture of President Coolidge with his ear glued to a telephone transmitter, shouting orders and receiving "yes, sirs" from the Republican leaders running the convention at Cleveland, has been misinformed as to what is going on at the Executive Mansion here in Washington.

It is not recorded that any occupant of the White House ever worked himself into a high nervous state on the eve of his nomination for the presidency, but none ever took it easier than Calvin Coolidge.

The casual caller would get the impression, if he did not know this quiet, silent, industrious man, that to be nominated as a candidate for president by any great political party was a week end diversion that tired and bored him by many repetitions. President Coolidge is interested, of course, in what is taking place in Ohio, but he refuses to get excited about it.

It is his business, as he sees it, to perform the duties of president of the United States, and he is performing them, regardless of any other considerations.

His friends at Cleveland, Frank Stearns, William M. Butler, and his secretary, C. Bascom Slomp, have been in communication with the White House. But they have talked to Ted Clark, the president's private secretary, for the most part. The president has no orders to give, and on the few occasions when they have talked to him personally from the convention city, he has listened patiently and thanked them briefly for their kindness in telling him what is going on before the Washington newspapers get on the street.

Assurances have been given by the president, however, that he will express no preference concerning a vice-presidential candidate—he wants the convention to do the picking—and he has made known his approval of the platform drawn up by Ambassador Warren and the committee on resolutions.

Today Mr. Coolidge received the Belgian ambassador, and the mayor of Philadelphia, talked with a number of other visitors or more or less importance, and then shook hands with several visiting high school girls.

Quits as Head of French Republic

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, June 11.—Alexandre Millerand handed in his resignation today as president of the French Republic.

When parliament convened this afternoon for the simultaneous reading of the letter of resignation in both houses there was much speculation as to his successor. The new president will be a supporter of the policies of the Left bloc (radical Socialists). He will be elected Friday.

A cabinet meeting was held before noon after which President Millerand sent his letter of resignation to the presidents of the chamber and senate. This communication, which was to be read shortly after 3 o'clock, was one of the shortest documents of the kind on record, merely saying:

"I have the honor to transmit to you my resignation as president of the Republic."

Millerand's defeat by the Left bloc in both houses of parliament following the reading of his defiant message made resignation inevitable.

Resignation of the Francois-Marsal cabinet is expected at once.

President Millerand was drawn into retirement by the same forces that defeated former Premier Raymond Poincare. The two had worked hand in hand for a drastic nationalist policy.

President Millerand was elected September 23, 1920, for a seven year term. He claimed that he had exercised only his constitutional powers and that parliament was not justified in forcing him from office.

By the end of the week, according to the present program, France will have an entire new government and will be ready to tackle home and foreign problems with a clean slate.

It is expected that there will be a new president, a new premier and a new cabinet.

Name Worried Curate

I was named Ethelbert, but I was not christened in this country, and from year to year that formal ceremony was postponed until I had reached the ripened age of twelve. I suppose that my father was waiting for the time when my godfather, Maj. William Appleton, should come to England; but the time arrived when at Saint Margaret's at Westminster, I was christened. The curate who took me through my course was very much worried over my name, Ethelbert. I suppose he had some idea that in heaven I might be mistaken for a boy. He asked me very graciously if I would not take the Christian name of Mary, so there would not be any mistake on that score. I was confirmed by Bishop Ingham at Saint Paul's, a most beautiful service which I shall never forget.—From Billie Burke's "Reminiscences" in the Delineator.

THE SANDMAN STORY

WISE MISS DUCK

THERE were only a few ducks at the farm until one day there came a handsome black and green one who quite upset the old ducks with her handsome feathers.

"Her feathers may be handsomer than ours," said old Miss Duck, "but can she lay eggs? That is the question whose answer will prove her worth to the farmer. 'Handsome is that handsome does' is a true saying," and Miss Duck waddled away to her nest to think things over.

The new duck soon made friends with the others, all but old Miss Duck. "Let them go walking and gossiping with that new duck if they like," she said. "They will lose their heads some day if they spend their time that way instead of attending to their work."

"My dears," said the new duck one day, "I can't see why the farmer keeps that funny old Miss Duck around here. Why, she must be years old, and it is disgraceful the way she lets her feathers go, so ruffled up and untidy looking."

"I may be old and not so trim looking as you," thought Miss Duck as she sat on her nest, "but I don't spend my time gossiping and waddling about the barnyard or go swimming until my work is done."

"Our new friend is very charming," said the old Drake to Miss Duck one morning, "but I think as you are the oldest one in the barnyard, Miss Duck, you better tell her about very little thing sitting upon it."

"Tell her yourself," replied Miss Duck. "She thinks I am old-fashioned and she would not listen to me."

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel

HAZEL

HAZEL is a typically modern product. It has sprung into popular usage in comparatively recent years, but the origin dates back to the old Icelandic rhyme and the word has, signifying the color "light brown." The fruit of the hazelnut tree bears that same indescribable hue. There are few instances in etymological history where names were given to denote color, unless violet, rose and a few others, may be taken to represent a color rather than a flower; so Hazel bears a rather unusual distinction.

By a curiously significant relation, it may be said to be an equivalent of Evelyn, since the latter comes from the Latin word avellana, meaning hazelnut. Etymologically speaking, Hazel is one of the most unusual and difficult names in the feminine lexicon, which may account for its popularity and piquancy. It has found great favor with actresses and singers, and pretty maids with a predilection for affectation.

The cat's-eye is Hazel's talismanic stone. It is the Hindu charm against evil spirits, and will protect its wearer from danger and disease. According to an old superstition, it will likewise endow her with extraordinary personal magnetism. Tuesday is her lucky day and 1 her lucky number.

THE GARDENER

LET Trouble-Makers trouble make. And fill the land with quail and quake. Lonesome

Once upon a time I prayed that I might be delivered from all my troubles, but when my prayer was answered I was the lonesome man in the world; there was nobody to sympathize with me!—Atlanta Constitution.

"Good morning," quacked Mr. Drake to the new duck. "It is a fine day to lay eggs, it seems to me, and I saw the farmer this morning looking into your nest."

"Let him look," said Miss Duck. "I can't be bothered laying eggs. He should be glad to have such a handsome creature as I am waddling about the barnyard for folks to look at. Really, Mr. Drake, until I came here you had a very scraggly looking lot of ducks."

"Let old Miss Duck lay the eggs. She is too old-fashioned to do anything else. Won't you go swimming with me, Mr. Drake? It is such a lovely day out on the pond."

Old Miss Duck saw them as they passed her nest. "He is just as bad as the rest," she said. "That new duck has turned all their heads, but you wait and see what happens," she said to Speckled hen, who was scratching for worms nearby. "She won't last long around here."

"Never saw such handsome eggs as that old duck lays," said the farmer as he took the eggs from Miss Duck's nest. "She is worth more than all the other ducks put together, and that new one is worthless; hasn't laid an egg since I got her. I guess she will be worth more on the table than in the barnyard."

"Where is the new duck?" inquired Mr. Drake one morning. "I haven't seen her this morning."

"If you take a look in the kitchen you might find her," said old Miss Duck, "and if the rest of you want to keep your heads on," she said to the other ducks, "you'd better take warning and get busy laying eggs."

Miss Duck wriggled off her nest. "Look at those handsome brown eggs," she said. "I told you 'handsome is that handsome does' is a true saying. The farmer did not say I was handsome, but he did look at my big eggs and said I was worth more than all of the others put together."

As Miss Duck waddled off one of the others said: "She is a queer old thing, but she is wise, and I guess we'd better go to work for she may be right. We shall find our way into the kitchen just as the new duck did."

"Queer how one silly duck can upset things," said old Miss Duck to Speckled Hen the next morning. "There isn't a duck to be seen on the pond; all busy attending to their work. I guess the farmer won't bring any more new ducks around to help us out again."

The Why of Superstitions

By H. IRVING KING

YELLOW GARTERS

LET an unmarried girl get a woman friend to knit for her a yellow garter. The woman friend must ask a man, unknown to the girl, to knit ten rows of the garter. The girl who receives and wears the garter will marry the man who knit the ten rows within a year. Another version simply says that if a girl wears a yellow garter every day in the year, or day and night for six months, she will be married at the expiration of one of those periods.

This yellow garter superstition is common in this country and Canada. In the first version of the superstition we have as one of the magical elements the knitting of the ten rows by the future husband. By so doing the man, through the magic of the doctrine of knots, ties himself and his destiny into the garter, thus attaching himself with the garter to the young lady who wears it—good primitive magic. In both versions the garter works by a magical practice akin to the doctrine of knots, which might be called the doctrine of ligatures. A ligature binds physically; therefore it binds spiritually as the reasoning of primitive man and is the reasoning of primitive savage tribes as attested by many of their customs. The doctrine of ligatures is found running back through all ancient mythologies and forms of heathen worship.

As to the color of the garter which brings a husband to the unmarried girl; yellow is the color of the sun, of the gold of the wedding ring and of the ripened grain—and thus well calculated, from a magical point of view, to add power to the effect of the ligature.

MEN YOU MAY MARRY

By E. R. PEYSER

Mar a man like this proposed to you?

Symptoms: Very bossy—acts as if you were a machine; in fact, treats everyone that way. Rather stout, dresses quietly, doesn't stick at anything long, only has a job for a few months at a time, thinks he knows more than his superiors, gossips and gets in wrong all over the place. Talks in platitudes and thinks he is clever because he always has a pat remark. Thinks you can anchor him at one job.

IN FACT

No dreadnought anchor could keep him "put."

Have You This Habit?

By Margaret Morison

MR. SMILEY

THE lawn party became an impressive occasion when Mrs. Alexander King appeared on the arm of her son, John. Impressive, that is, to all but Mr. Smiley. Presently Mrs. King heard a stage whisper behind her: "Do you enjoy a joke?" She turned to find Mr. Smiley knocking out the rung of a camp stool so that anyone sitting down upon it would be precipitated to the ground.

"It's for John," he explained.

Now Mrs. King did not wish to put John in the position of being protected by his mother; so she said nothing though she kept her eye on the "joke."

Then someone came to speak to her, and she turned away. The next minute she heard a frightened cry. A distinguished French woman was visiting town at the time. And it was she, not John King, who had fallen victim to Mr. Smiley's American humor.

An evil fate seemed to pursue Mrs. King after that lawn party. About half way through the winter a business friend of her husband died, and out of respect to him she went to the funeral. She was ushered to a pew well forward. As she sat waiting for the service to begin, she noticed that someone else had slipped in beside her. She looked up, and to her horror, there was Smiley; and a glance at his countenance made her realize that his habit of banter was upon him. When she knelt for the prayer, she found that two cushions had been slipped before her; she was offered a hymnal upside down; and during the reading Smiley tried to show her caricatures of the mourners that he was drawing on the back of an old envelope.

"We might as well see the funny side," he whispered complacently. The very next day, as it happened, John King brought home to dinner an old college friend who had become a theatrical manager.

"Do you know a Mr. Smiley?" asked the theater man.

Mrs. King shuddered. "Smiley wants a comedy part in our new play. I was interested to know he has your backing, Mrs. King." John's friend went on deferentially. "Mr. Smiley's part in my mind is pure tragedy," broke in Mrs. King with emphasis.

"Oh, in that case, Smiley wouldn't do," ended the other.

And Smiley never knew why his histrionic ambitions had been so suddenly snuffed out, as he pursued unquenched his habit of trying to be funny.

THE Young Lady Across the Way

Two weeks ago, before a jazz dance at the Norwalk, Conn. She is the daughter-in-law of Thomas Leaman, marine architect and yachtsman.

Dr. George McE. Lunn, the Samoan missionary, said at a missionary meeting in Denver:

"Now, chief," he concluded, "your name is Jean, remember, and you must never eat meat on Friday—only fish."

"Tuait-vai-yala was none too pleased, perhaps, to lose his high-sounding name. Anyhow the missionary found him, the very next Friday, eating roast pig."

"Jean, Jean, eating pig on a fast day!" he cried.

"But the chief laughed easily. 'No, no! I no eat pig,' he said, 'I put him in water and christen him fish.'"—Detroit Free Press.

Fire Destroyed Elwyn's Store

Timely Discovery and Prompt Work of Firemen Saved Village of Woodstock Early This Morning—Saugerties Sent Help to Fight Flames.

But for the timely discovery of the fire that wiped out the general store of Leslie A. Elwyn and the prompt work of the fire department of Woodstock, assisted by fire apparatus from Saugerties, the village of Woodstock would have been swept by the worst fire in its history early this morning, but the fire was gotten under control and nearby buildings were saved.

The building which housed Elwyn's store is a large frame structure with the upper floor used as living apartments and occupied by Mrs. Elwyn, wife of a brother of the store proprietor. It is located on the opposite side of the street from the Cashdollar garage.

When the building was discovered on fire about 2 o'clock this morning, it was feared that the Woodstock Hotel, the garage, and other buildings would be set on fire from the burning structure and word was telephoned to Deputy Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy for assistance, but as the local apparatus was about to start a message was received that the fire was under control.

In the meantime Saugerties, which had also received a call for assistance, had hurried men and apparatus to Woodstock and they assisted the Woodstock fire department.

The fire was a hot one owing to the frame building and the contents. It was feared that the flames would communicate to the gasoline and tanks on the opposite side of the street, at the Cashdollar garage. The top of one of the gas tanks was burned off, but the work of the firemen prevented a further spread of the flames.

Mrs. Elwyn, who resided in the rooms over the store, recently underwent an operation and was still confined to her bed. She was carried out of the burning structure and cared for at the home of neighbors.

Building and contents were entirely destroyed. The building was recently enlarged. It is thought the fire started in the feed department. Insurance was $4,500, but will not cover the loss.

Fast Fighters Matched Here

There Will be 38 Rounds of Fighting at Next Show at Kingston Fair Grounds on June 18—Joe Werner to Fight Again—Joe Coffey on Card.

The management of the Kingston Athletic Association has completed the card for the big open air bouts at the Kingston Fair Grounds for next Wednesday evening, June 18, at 8.15 o'clock. There will be 38 rounds of boxing. The local fighters to appear are Joe Werner and Joe Coffey. The Poughkeepsie fighter, Romanello, will also be here that night.

There will be two ten round bouts. In the first Jimmy Russo of Brooklyn will meet Sammy Marino of New York. Both boys weigh 114 pounds and are fast fighters with plenty of skill and punch to their blows. The second ten round bout will see Joe Romanello of Poughkeepsie in action against Tony Saracco of New York. Both boys will weigh in at 145 pounds. Romanello will be remembered as the lad who knocked out Don Hyatt at the Decoration Day bouts here.

An eight round bout will be staged between Johnny Midy of Peekskill and Joe Werner of this city. At the last show Werner knocked out his man.

Marty Sullivan of New York will step six rounds with Joey Kaufman of New York. They weigh in at 124 pounds.

The four round bout will bring together Joe Coffey of this city and Tommy Duffy of New York. They will weigh in at 145 pounds. Duffy is said to be very fast and the fans have seen Joe in action before. If it should happen to rain the 18th, the fights will be pulled off the following night.

Delegates Deny Reily a Seat

Convention Hall, Cleveland, June 11.—E. Mont Reily of Kansas City, ex-governor general of Porto Rico, was denied a seat in the Republican national convention today by official action of the convention. Reily and Robert H. Yaroni.

An Oklahoma member of the committee, however, moved from the floor that Todd be seated with the native delegates, and this was done, each getting a two thirds vote.

1 DEAD, 1 DYING FROM FEUD IN LITTLE ITALY

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, June 11.—Andrew Tortorello, 36, is dead, and Nicholas Zola, 35, is dying of a gunshot wound in his back, as a result, police say, of one of Harlem's "Little Italy" vendettas when an unseen gunman, early today fired through a door into a room containing 13 card players. The men were seated at a table in the Garden restaurant, a glass rear extension of an old house at 417 East 116th street. Tortorello was standing and Zola, a baler, was seated at his right.

Suddenly three bullets were fired through the glass panel of a door leading into a small garden. Tortorello with two bullets in his chest staggered to the front and toppled to the floor. Zola collapsed half way up the block.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 11, 1924.

It is not easy to get the people worked up very much over the nominee for vice-president but, nevertheless, at the conventions this year it will be taken into consideration that it is well to have a good man ready to take the place of another good man if need be. The country was fortunate that Coolidge was nominated for vice-president four years ago.

THE ROCKEFELLER CASE.

So long as a Tammany controlled police department in New York city continues to demote police officers who have performed their duty, so long will the "rubens" of Ulster and other up-state counties continue to fight the Tammany peril at the polls. The latest case of demotion is that of Patrolman Edward R. Fleming, who arrested Abby Rockefeller, the 21-year old daughter of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for speeding. It was her second offense, but Fleming testified that he had been told the magistrate who was to hear the case wanted the record changed so as to make it appear she was a first offender.

It is probable that Fleming never would have been given a chance to divulge that valuable information in court except for Mayor Hylan's insatiable love of gallery play: when he received complaining letters from chauffeurs that New York had "one law for the rich and another law for the poor," he saw opportunity to get the chauffeurs' political support by ordering an investigation by his commissioner of accounts, David Hirschfeld, who pulls many Hylan chestnuts from the fire. After Fleming's damaging testimony, Hirschfeld adjourned the investigation without date and has taken no public action since.

Now, Fleming has been transferred from the motorcycle squad, of which he has been an efficient and trustworthy member, to the foot patrol force and assigned to a precinct which will require two or three hours' travelling between his home and the station house. The transfer was made in special orders signed by Mayor Hylan's bosom friend, Police Commissioner Enright. Fleming was the only motorcycle policeman transferred.

The Fleming case not only arouses "rubens" suspicion of the integrity of the methods of Tammany Hall to solicit the patronage of excessively temperamental people of great wealth but also of the means employed to control men on whose testimony the property and lives of citizens may depend. The incident also raises a suspicion of the quality of manliness which may be found in a family which would countenance such a demotion without protest. Among America's men of wealth there are comparatively few men or even young women who would view such an occurrence with complacency.

THE TWO YOUNG MURDERERS.

Leopold and Loeb, confessed kidnapers and murderers of the Franks boy in Chicago, were both young and both described as precocious, the latter having taken his college degree at the age of 18 a year ago. The precocity of these young murderers inevitably recalls the case of the boy Sidis who attracted wide attention as a 10-year-old student at Harvard, who took his final degrees at 16, later got into trouble in connection with some anarchistic disturbance, and recently was reported as working as an ordinary clerk for $23 a week and as being a young man of no promise. Premature intellectual brilliance is a dangerous thing; it would appear that nature exacts a penalty when there is marked departure from the usual course of mental development. The mind abnormally developed at a tender age may not only burn out swiftly, with incompetence to follow, but from the ashes may spring abnormalities likely to wreck the whole life.

Such seems to have been the story of the young Chicago murderers. The trivial reason they gave for their desire to commit the crime and their whole attitude as reported, seem to indicate, not insanity, but a mental twist or perversity not to be classed as normal. They are responsible for their crime and call for punishment, but at the same time they would appear to be outside the class of normal young men. Whatever the final report of the alienists, society can not afford now or ever to let two such persons go free and retain the power to act again upon the inexplicable impulse impelling them to commit this amazing crime.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

HOW LONG SHOULD YOU LIVE?

One who has investigated the matter, Dr. Leonard Williams, states that man should live from 120 to 140 years.

He bases this on the fact that if you estimate the average age of the lower animals in relation to the time it takes them to reach maturity, and apply that formula to man, he is really cheating himself out of fifty years of life.

He attributes this to the fact that man is "gifted" with reason.

This reasoning process is his undoing.

With an animal its instinct teaches it what to eat, and the amount to eat. If it has eaten too much, or unwisely, it fasts for a day or two.

What about man?

He looks about for something "different" in his diet, perhaps loads himself up with medicine to counteract his indiscretions in diet. He forgets the fact that he is an animal, the highest type of animal, of course, but nevertheless an animal with an animal body.

It needs just the same kind of food, exercise and rest as the animal which has no reasoning power but only instinct to guide it.

It does seem wrong that as men and women walking erect, with dominion over all the animal kingdom, made in God's own image, as we're taught, able to traverse land, sea and sky, that we'll not use good ordinary sense about the care of this wonderful body of ours.

I am sometimes asked to explain why there is such a lack of understanding of the needs of the body, why men and women know less about its functions than about a motor car.

It is not hard to explain.

You are an ordinary health, get up in the morning, go about your daily duties, eat your meals and then off to sleep again at night. That body of yours does everything for you so easily, so smoothly, that you don't really have to give it any thought.

Its very perfection is your undoing. You know how you have always felt toward the health "crank." You figure him as going by the clock always, up at a certain time, so much physical "culture," then a breakfast of so many calories, so many chews to each bite of food, then his outdoor "breathing exercises," his lunch of raw vegetables, and so forth and so on.

The very thought about it makes you feel glad that you still have your mind anyway.

Now this faddist may have had to adopt some regular system for his particular case. But you may go to the other extreme, and because of your perfect health just go along year in and year out with no thought about trying to preserve the parts that may wear out.

Any one part being weak can shorten your life.

You are only as strong as your weakest part.

No special system required. Get your physician and dentist to look you over at least once a year. And at least try to follow their advice.

ODELL ALMOST MISSED CLEVELAND SPECIAL

Ex-Governor Benjamin E. Odell of Newburgh, who was scheduled to make the trip to Cleveland on the special train which carried the New York state delegation to the Republican National Convention, almost missed making the trip with his associate delegates from the Empire state.

The New York delegation's special train left the Grand Central station, New York, at four o'clock in the afternoon, and arrangements had been made for it to stop at Poughkeepsie for Mr. Odell and others from Orange county. Somebody blundered, and the special whizzed past the Odell party. Mr. Odell sought the railroad authorities for help.

Meanwhile George Franklin, of the New York delegation, had espied the Odell party on the Poughkeepsie station platform and had just succeeded in having the engineer notified to stop the special when the block signal was set against the train. The train went on a siding and waited.

About twenty minutes later, Mr. Odell and his party arrived on another special train which had been assembled hastily, and they climbed on board the regular special which then sped on to Cleveland.

It is now time to state our positive conviction that the good Maxwell is the best four-cylinder car in America at anything like its price.

The high goal set up by the new organization more than three years ago has been reached. The last year's rapid development of sweeping superiorities in riding, and driving, and all phases of performance, leave no doubt of that.

Below: PREMIER NITTI, MRS. FRANCES F. BERNARD

When the steam roller of William M. Butler, wealthy Massachusetts manufacturer, who is directing President Coolidge's campaign for reelection, flattened out Henry Cabot Lodge, Senator and prominent in Republican conventions many years, he did not even murmur, thereby proving he could be a gentleman under all circumstances.

Mrs. Frances Fenton Bernard, formerly educational secretary of the American Association of University Women, is new dean of women at Smith College.

Francesco Nitti, exponent of peace and liberalism and former Premier of Italy, is an exile in Switzerland, because he opposes the high-handed rule of Premier Mussolini and his Fascists!

Gilbert K. Chesterton, peaceful purveyor of platitudinous paradoxes, is ready to go to war with the United States if visiting Americans don't stop trying to make Britons supplant the heavy English breakfast with the lighter Yankee style.

State Politics
At Cleveland

Delegate Talk Discloses Speaker Mac-hold and Congressman Snell Are Being Considered for Gubernatorial Nomination.

Cleveland despatches to various New York newspapers show that delegates attending the Republican National Convention are spending at least part of their time in talking New York state politics, particularly with reference to the Republican nomination for governor.

Colonel William Hayward's boom is said to have made marked advance, with the result that it has reacted to spur friends of Speaker Mac-hold of the assembly and of Congressman Bertrand H. Snell to new efforts on their behalf. Speaker Mac-hold in an interview said he would let his position be known shortly, and it is stated that he has never declared himself, though his friends insist the nomination will come his way if he shows a desire for it.

Mr. Snell's close association with the Coolidge administration is counted on to aid him in the governorship race. It is said his inaction on the bill to increase the pay of postal employees is believed to have undermined his position to some extent. This measure was not brought out of the rules committee of the House of Representatives, of which he is chairman, until the closing day of the session. President Coolidge vetoed the bill.

Friends of Mr. Snell say that Coolidge will carry New York state and they dwell upon their reasons for having the representative head the state ticket. They believe the prospect of a Republican victory in New York is good regardless of what Democrats may do. Some of the Republicans believe Governor Smith will be candidate for a third term at Albany. Few believe he will be nominated for president.

The talk of nominating Col. Theodore Roosevelt for governor, which was state-wide about a year ago, has been resumed and it is said he has the backing of Senator Wadsworth for the nomination.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

XANTIPPE.

Xantippe was the wife of Socrates, the Athenian philosopher, and was remarkable for her moroseness and violence of temper. It is said that Socrates was aware of her character, and married her to exercise his patience. She, however, loved her husband and mourned his death, which took place about 398 B. C. It is just possible that Xantippe had cause for her temper, for Socrates was in the habit of spending many of his evenings in the company of the beautiful Aspasia. It is certain that Xantippe loved Socrates for the qualities of his mind, and she was always true to him. Had he been as true to her, she would no doubt, have been milder, as well as a happier woman.

CONQUEST OF TROY AND OTHER EVENTS.

The conquest and destruction of ancient Troy was accomplished on June 11, 1184 B. C. according to English chronologists. Homer has made the most famous record of the fall of the ancient stronghold. According to Greek chronology Troy was conquered on the 24th Thargelion, which corresponds to our April 24. On June 11, 534 B. C. Servius Tullius, sixth king of Rome, was assassinated by the soldiery headed by his son-in-law, Tarquin. On the same day in the year 1258 the Great Council of Reform, called the Mad Parliament, assembled at Oxford. Other important events took place on June 11 were:

1294—Roger Bacon, learned monk of the Franciscan order, died, aged 80. Next to Archimedes he is considered the greatest mechanical genius the world had seen.

1727—George I, King of England, died in his carriage near Osnabrück, Germany.

1776—Congress appointed Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, Benjamin Franklin and Robert R. Livingston a committee to prepare a declaration of independence.

ROGER BACON.

The great English scientist, Roger Bacon, died 630 years ago today, June 11, 1294. The exact date of his birth is unknown, but it is believed that this year marks the 709th anniversary. He was persecuted and condemned as a heretic by the church, and much of his work destroyed, so that the extent of his discoveries cannot be definitely known. It is certain that he was centuries ahead of his ignorant and credulous time in chemistry, mathematics and mechanics. Branded as a heretic and magician, he was thrown into prison, largely because of the liberal views he expressed on religious questions. Pope Nicholas III, was responsible for the imprisonment of the first great man of science, and from 1277 until a short time before his death Bacon was immured in a filthy cell. Bacon is said to have invented the camera-obscura, the air-pump and the diving-bell, and he was acquainted with the uses of optical lenses and the nature of gun-powder, although the projectile power of gunpowder appears not to have been discovered until the following century. It is said that during a war Bacon set fire to the chief buildings in a town by using burning lenses.

A LETTER FROM PARIS.

(By Eleanor Gunn)

With ocean liners filled to capacity by Americans, the influence of French taste on American fashions can hardly be ignored. It is a little too much to expect of a mere human that she go to Paris and refrain from shopping. What is more, she has a natural hesitancy as to what sort of clothes she must wear to be in the picture on and after her arrival, and until such time as she may be able to replenish her wardrobe.

Here is a letter from Paris which clarifies one's ideas and gives not only a clue to, but a word picture of what one may expect to see. The chic Parisienne has fled Paris at this season, and is to be found at the numerous charming resorts with which France is dotted, and Paris has more Americans than America itself, most of them agog for novelties!

A typical smart day about Paris shows that touches of white and of color are to be the leading note in black costumes right now. Black and white is still the favorite combination. There are straight, black crepe gowns with a wide frilled jabot collar that tapers down in an ever narrowing cascade to the hem of the dress. This is a Vionnet idea and is adopted by many smart women.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE LOST BUNNY

He was a little bit of a bunny rabbit—at least he looked and felt very small and he was lost.

All alone. He did not know what had happened to his mother nor to any of the others of his family. His mother had been the last to leave him and not come back. Dreadful things had happened to the others.

And from the way he had seen his dear mother protect him and risk danger herself he knew she had not deserted him.

Something had happened to her and that was what made him feel so very sad and so very small and so very hopeless and helpless.

Oh, he knew only too well that Mother Bunny Rabbit had never left him alone of her own accord.

Something had happened to her. And now he was alone in the world.

All alone. He didn't quite know what to do. He had had a few rabbit lessons and he knew his mother's signals and how to obey her and all such things.

But how could he get along without his mother's help?

It was a dreadful world—big and frightful and enormous.

And it seemed as though the whole world would be too big and too busy to be able to pay any attention to a poor lonely, lost little bunny.

He felt cold and frightened and he trembled and his little heart went very, very fast.

But he stayed quite still. What was he to do? How would he be able to keep warm and get his food and how could he sleep away from his mother's dear, soft, fuzzy rabbit body?

Oh, what would he do? He wandered and wandered and wandered. At times he hurried for shelter and remembered his mother's lesson to "lie low" when there was danger.

And yet he scarcely knew why he did all this when he was only a little lonely rabbit, and perhaps the sooner it was all over the better it would be.

But something made him take care of himself. Something made him remember her lessons.

And then, after he had wandered, until he felt he could go no further, he heard great enormous steps and a voice which said:

"Didn't I see a bunny just then?" He was frightened, and yet there had been something nice about the voice. But he must lie low.

Then he thought he would take a peep.

And then came the voice again. "Yes, I did see a bunny, a darling, darling little bunny."

He didn't believe he need be afraid. He went forth and sat not far from the little girl, though to the bunny she seemed very enormous.

"You seem to be lost," the little girl said, "but if you have no home I will take care of you. I'd give anything for a little pet bunny."

Perhaps that was what the bunny had been waiting for—perhaps he knew that a beautiful home was ahead of him.

Anyhow he had the happiest of homes. Oh, such a pet as he was. And how his mistress loved him. And many a nap he had curled up in her lap and how often she kissed his soft fur and said to him in a voice so sweet:

"My dear little bunny pet, oh, I'm so glad I found you."

When Mother Means It

Dorothy was playing out in the yard and having a glorious time with her dog when her mother called her. She went on serenely playing and a neighbor who was passing said:

"Dorothy, don't you hear your mother calling you?"

"Yes," answered the child, "but I only answer after she calls three times."

Made That Much Noise

"Oh, mamma!" exclaimed little Charles as he rushed into the house. "There are 200 dogs in our back yard!"

"Are you sure there are that many?" asked his mother.

"Well," replied Charles, "there is our dog and another one anyway."

TASTY DISHES

If you are fond of sweet potatoes, the following will be a dish you will cherish:

Sweet Potatoes de Luxe.—Boil six medium-sized potatoes until well done. Cut into slices lengthwise and arrange in a buttered baking dish, using one tablespoonful of diced pineapple between the layers.

Season with a teaspoonful of salt and dot with bits of butter. Pour over one cupful of pineapple juice, sprinkle with a teaspoonful of sugar and dot with bits of butter. Bake one-half hour, keeping covered the first half of the time. When done garnish with marshmallows and return to the oven to puff and brown. Serve at once.

China Chile.—Cut into small pieces two pounds of the neck of lamb, discarding the fat. Soak one cupful of lima beans. Take one head of lettuce, two sliced onions, two cupfuls of boiling water and salt and pepper to season. Soak the beans overnight, add them to the meat and vegetables and simmer until the meat is tender—about three hours.

Coffee Marshmallow Cream.—Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in two tablespoonfuls of cold water until soft. Add two cupfuls of strong, boiling hot coffee and stir until the gelatin is dissolved. Add one-fourth of a cupful of sugar, one cupful of condensed milk, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla and one-fourth of a pound of marshmallows—the latter just before chilling. Cut the marshmallows into quarters with scissors. If the blades of the scissors are buttered they will cut without sticking.

Peach Canape.—Cut rounds from sponge or a plain butter cake, soak with a tablespoonful of the juice from a can of peaches or canned peaches. Fill the hollow with sweetened, flavored whipped cream and sprinkle with chopped almonds. Almond flavoring for the cream is very good.

Small gem sponge cakes. Filled with whipped cream or any desired filling which may be prepared just before serving, are most delicious as dessert.

Stream Has a "Kick"

Each year millions of dollars' worth of salmon and trout are to be saved in the state of Washington by the installation in the irrigation ditches of simple electric stops.

The fruitful Yakima valley and other irrigated sections of Washington that get their life-saving waters from tributaries of the mighty Columbia, or directly from that great river, have heretofore raised products of the soil with an accompanying sacrifice of at least $2,000,000 worth of food-fish annually. This has been a tremendous sum to set against the value of the harvests of the fields, but while this wholesale destruction of salmon and trout seemed nothing short of criminal waste, there appeared no practicable way of stopping it.—St. Nicholas Magazine.

Sinister Misnomer

There is a certain little Russian restaurant in Paris, where there are many Russian restaurants these days. It is altogether charming, the cooking is excellent and the wines and the music are praiseworthy. A violinist and several fellow conspirators perform like virtuosos. There is, in fact, but one discordant note, and that is in a placard tacked up near the orchestra, which reads: "Venez voir les celebres exccuteurs." (Come in and see the famous executioners.) "Exccuteurs" in a Russian restaurant! The chills go up one's spine.—From Le Figaro, Paris (Translated for the Kansas City Star).

When Truth Hurts

One of the annual crop of car owners that disdains to drive the same model car for two seasons, advertised his auto for sale in an outstate paper. Soon after the advertisement appeared, his phone was kept busy with such queries as "Do you think your car would hold out as far as Chicago?" "What do you think of its chances of getting as far as Columbus?" etc. In bewilderment, he looked up the advertisement and discovered that his own eulogy of the bargain had been faithfully copied, including the statement: "This one won't last long."—Indianapolis News.

NEW 1925 CHANDLER

Today's Most Modern Car Every Unit Loved by Use

THE 1925 Chandler now offered to the public represents the splendid result of eighteen months' development.

No other car is more clearly abreast of the times. None contains so many recent developments of established merit.

A big, beautiful, modern car, it carries an assurance of master performance and sound service.

Exhaustive experiment has preceded each of the improvements that have been steadily added.

Traffic Transmission

This exclusive Chandler feature is a thoroughly perfected unit. Other manufacturers are in the midst of ambitious experiments with the principles it involves. Chandler success has brought the subject of better gear speed changing into national prominence.

Already thousands of Chandler owners are familiar with the safer, more delightful driving made possible by the Traffic Transmission.

It makes clashing, rapping gears an impossibility. All drivers make a silent, flawless gear change from high to low or low to high regardless of driving conditions.

Yet the driver handles the Traffic Transmission exactly like the standard gear shift. In its use there is absolutely nothing new to learn.

Pikes Peak Motor

As attested by the longest string of high gear records ever held by any stock car, this famous Chandler power plant still stands as the ultimate in engineering achievements.

DOINGS AT THE CHURCH OF COMFORTER

The monthly business meeting and social of the Adult Bible Class will be held in the chapel on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. A good time is promised and fine refreshments. As this will be the last meeting until September it is hoped that every member will be present.

On Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock Miss Matilda Bergh, a missionary in India will speak on India. This address should be of great interest to all and it is hoped that there may be a large number of people present. A free will offering for the benefit of the Woman's Missionary Society will be taken. The public as well as the members of the parish are invited.

There will be a food sale at the chapel Saturday. Coffee, cake, baked beans and potato salad will be for sale. These can be obtained any time after 12 o'clock. Orders may be telephoned to Mrs. Frank Brown, Mrs. William Simpson or Mrs. John H. Schryver, on or before Friday evening.

The men's club is planning for a very fine entertainment on Tuesday evening, June 17th, when Russell P. Trimble will give his celebrated lecture on liquid air, illustrated with spectacular experiments. A cake of ice on fire. A hammer made of mercury. A kettle of water hot on ice. A steam engine run without steam. A fish frozen solid and brought back to life? Ice cream made in a chafing dish? A liquid that is 300 degrees below zero. The above are a few of the experiments to be shown. Tickets can be procured of the different members of the club.

Flooded Cellars Near Albany Ave.

State Health Board Says Street Construction Caused Them and Health Boards Have No Jurisdiction—Other Matters Before Board of Health.

At one of the health board meetings early in the year, Dr. Daniel Connelly, health officer of the city, brought up the matter of flooded cellars in houses that had been recently erected on the Wilbur development, near Albany avenue, and stated that he intended taking the matter up with the state board of health. Tuesday evening at the regular monthly meeting of the health board, he reported that he had received a communication from C. A.
Holmquist, director of the division of sanitation of the state board, who had had an inspection made.

The communication read, "As a result of our investigation of an alleged nuisance in the northern part of your city and in the town of Ulster, it appears that the construction and grading of Harwich and Otis streets and a private driveway on the property of M. Furman in the town of Ulster across a natural drainage course, has caused water to back up and flood a portion of land in said city and town. It is alleged that as a result of these conditions the cellars of the Fitzgerald and Kearney properties in the town of Ulster have become flooded with water.

"Furthermore, the overflow from cesspools on the Hillowitz property in the city of Kingston is discharged into a ditch which empties into the water course mentioned above. The drainage from a barnyard and manure pile also enters the brook.

"The flooding of the land and cellars as a result of the construction of these highways and the driveway is clearly a case of property damage.
While the condition should be corrected, it is not a matter that comes under the jurisdiction of this department or the local board of health. The insanitary condition created by the manure pile on and the discharge of sewage from the Hillowitz property should be corrected and I trust that prompt steps will be taken by your board to see that this is done. The sewage effluent from the cesspools should be disposed of so that no overflow onto the ground occurs and the manure should be removed daily or kept in a tight covered box so that no odors may be created and no breeding flies will take place.

"A copy of this communication is being sent to the health officer of the town of Ulster."

Dr. Connelly informed the board that the recommendations regarding the cesspool and the manure pile had received prompt attention and had been attended to. The communication from the state health board was filed.

Miss Mufson Resigns.

A communication from Miss B.
Eleanor Easton, city laboratory director, stated that Miss Ruth Mufson, laboratory technician for the last three years, was leaving July 1, to take a special laboratory course at Columbia and the State Laboratory, and that it would be necessary to fill the vacancy at once. She asked that she be given the privilege of selecting a fully qualified bacteriologist and chemist at a salary of $1,500 a year.
"I wish to add blood chemistry," she wrote, "to our list of laboratory examinations and I feel assured that this extra income to the laboratory for this work will more than pay the difference in salary."

Only Public Health Work Free.

Dr. Norwood stated that other laboratories were making blood tests and he moved that Miss Easton's request to employ a qualified assistant be granted with the understanding that if there was a local person qualified to do the work, such person be given the preference. Dr. Norwood said that there seemed to be a general impression that the laboratory made free examinations and tests and that physicians charged their patients
a fee for the tests. This was not so.
The only free work done at the laboratory was public health work. All private work was charged to the physician who included it in his bill to the patient.

Higher Milk Prices.

Dr. Connelly brought to the attention of the board requests from John D. Prophet of Ulster Park to sell milk in Kingston three days a week,
and that of James Jordan of Port Ewen to sell milk in this city.

Dr. Clarke, food and sanitary inspector, stated that Mr. Prophet had made a request to sell milk last year, but it had been held up. This year he had again applied, and was informed that the matter would be taken up at the health board meeting that evening.

Dr. Clarke said that Kingston is paying more for its milk than any other city in the state. This he believed was due to the fact that Kingston had more milk dealers to its population than any other city of the same size, and he believed it was an economic question.

Commissioner Kaufman said it was true that Kingston had more milk dealers than any other city of the same size. At the present time there were about 30 dealers here. Poughkeepsie had but nine dealers. He believed that there were enough dealers here.

Mayor Block said that he did not believe the board should try to regulate the number of milk dealers, but the only question was whether the milk to be sold was satisfactory.

Housewives Settle Question.

Mrs. Thomas Hickey said that she believed the question of milk could be safely left to the housewives. If they bought milk from a dealer and it was not good they would quickly change dealers. She moved that Mr.
Prophet be granted a permit to sell milk. The motion was adopted.

The application of Mr. Jordan for a permit was also granted by the board.
The reports of the officers will be found elsewhere.

The board then adjourned. Mayor
Block presided with Commissioners
Norwood, McBride, Kaufman, Hubne,
Hickey and Haabrock present.

A New Type of Low Price Car is Ready to be Announced

If you are considering the purchase
of an automobile—
WAIT!

In seven days a leading local dealer will be offering a new type of motor car
—one that represents many months'
closely guarded research on the part of a prominent manufacturer.

This will mark
one of the great epochs in the development of the automobile.

It will be a six cylinder car of distinguished appearance, comparatively light in weight, yet extraordinarily strong and enduring.

It will be powered by a new type of motor which provides a range of hill and highway performance that is unique in the light of existing design.

Its owners will never be compelled to use an oil can or grease gun on any chassis part.

"One Shot"

This phrase will be on every tongue for months to come.
It marks the end of a grimy,
greasy, ever-distasteful task that is costly to neglect.
It marks the end of the oil
can and the grease gun.
It is the name of an exclusive feature on a car that will make motoring history.
What is it? Next week's advertisement tells all.

It will have as standard equipment—at no extra cost—genuine su-persize balloon
tires; and as optional equipment,
four-wheel brakes
of the most advanced design.

It will bear a name
now known and respected wherever motor cars run.

It will be manufactured as a unit in a plant that is uncommon in size and unexcelled in the completeness of its equipment.

In view of this, we feel justified in urging all to withhold until next week any definite decision to purchase any motor car—
however costly, however inexpensive.

A large advertisement appearing in this publication one week
hence will reveal complete details and state where this truly marvelous new car may be seen.

Pomono Grange At Mt. Tremper

(Official Report.)

Pomona Grange was held June 6 at Mt. Tremper with Worthy Master C. E. Davis presiding. A greater part of the morning was taken up with reports from the various granges, many of which showed a splendid gain in membership. There is no doubt but that Ulster county will go over the top in the membership drive this year. Several of the granges have accomplished things that show excellent community spirit.

At the request of State Master Strivings, a Home Economics Committee was appointed as follows: Mrs. Frank LeFever, New Paltz; Mrs. Sailer, Ashbury; Mrs. C. Hardenburgh, Stone Ridge.

Each subordinate grange was instructed to appoint a similar committee.

Several matters were discussed and the meeting was adjourned for noon recess.

After an excellent dinner served by the local grange, a number of the young generation put on a 15 minute program before the guests had left the table. That is was appreciated was made evident by the vigorous applause that followed each number. Several cures were enjoyed. This program was put on at the instigation of our newly elected lecturer and with the ready cooperation of the young folks of Mt. Tremper.

At the beginning of the afternoon session, the resolutions committee submitted the following:

Whereas the recent management of the Ulster County Fair has not been of a character edifying to the morals, or profitable to the agriculture of Ulster county, be it resolved that the Ulster County Pomona Grange urges the management of the Ulster County Agricultural Society to conduct the Ulster County Fair with regard to the interests of agriculture in this county.

Passed by Ulster County Pomona Grange June 6 at Mt. Tremper.

Whereas Ulster County Pomona Grange has always stood for good government, therefore be it resolved that we respectfully request the delegates to both the Republican and Democratic National Conventions to support only such candidates as will stand for law enforcement, particularly the 18th Amendment.

Passed by Pomona Grange June 6 at Mt. Tremper.

The Ulster County Pomona Grange mourns the death of our Brother, C. M. Woolsey, who was one of our charter members, always interested in grange work and helping us in every way for the betterment of the order.

The fifth degree was then put on in full form and a class of 12 initiated.

Brother Burgevin was given a hearty vote of thanks for beautiful roses sent by him to decorate the hall and tables.

As Mt. Tremper Grange had started a memorial library, J. Wells Weaver, Mrs. C. Hardenburgh and Mrs. Kate Covert were appointed to select a suitable book to add to this library in order to encourage such a custom.

Meeting adjourned to meet at the usual time.

THE YERKES OBSERVATORY

To avoid the fine and numerous particles of dust and smoke which naturally hover in the air over a big city and cut down the effectiveness of the observations, the jarring—even though minute—which upsets the calculations of the observers, and the disturbing reflections from the night illumination, powerful telescopes are usually stationed at points where these conditions do not have to be reckoned with.

Accordingly, the great Yerkes observatory (connected with the University of Chicago)—one of the greatest of all the astronomical laboratories on earth, is perched upon the crest of a bluff above beautiful Lake Geneva, near the town of Williams Bay, Wis.—about seventy miles northwest of Chicago.

In the largest of the three domes which surround the observatory is mounted the world's largest refracting telescope. It is also the busiest telescope, being in use both day and night the year round, weather conditions permitting.

In the center of this dome, which is 75-feet in diameter on the inside, balanced across the great pier which rests upon a solid foundation of concrete and supports the weight, is the barrel of this tremendous instrument. It is 62 feet long and weighs about 12,000 pounds. Each of the two great lenses which fit inside of this barrel are forty inches across.

The barrel of this instrument can be swung around in any direction and raised or lowered to any angle; the floor of the dome is movable and the entire roof of the dome revolves—all to the end that the observer can observe in any direction and at any angle necessary in order to properly perform the particular job in hand. After the barrel has been focused it can be adjusted to follow and keep in view the object under observation, relieving the observer of having to stop occasionally and focus his telescope. Adjustment as small as one-one-hundredth of an inch can be made.

With this telescope observers have been enabled to determine, with great exactness, the positions of stars in clusters and the distances between them. Stellar photographs taken, using the telescope as a camera, are among the best yet secured. The brightness of stars also is measurable with this instrument.

A magazine writer complains that woman suffrage thus far is a failure. Well, there have been times when a thoroughly conscientious man would have hesitated to say that man suffrage was a complete success.

Some Men Happy Only When Finding Fault

There are people who have the queer taste to "enjoy being ill." And there are others who get into very nasty taste still more queer, says London Answers.

They seize on an annoyance with the same avidity and relish as a dog grabs a bone. Give them an annoyance, something with which to find fault, and they are happy!

They come down to breakfast, hoping that the meal may be a few minutes late, so that they can find fault. If the daily paper has not been delivered, or if the eggs are under-bolled, instead of being hard boiled, they are satisfied. There's something with which to find fault, and that is all they want. It is a tonic, and they are happily launched for the day.

Outwardly, they may seem to be in a state of great annoyance, but, inwardly, they are self-satisfied and happy. Really they are in a similar category to drug-takers. Deprive the latter of what they want, and they are touchy and unapproachable. Give them what they want, and they are happy.

Those who suffer from "anoyitis" are the same. Deprive them of annoyances, remove all opportunity of fault-finding, and they are like bears with sore heads. Give them plenty of chances of fault-finding, and they are happy. Why?

Well, it is because they have two vices. They are tyrannical and selfish. Fault-finding enables them to exercise their tyranny and to obtain enjoyment by making others miserable.

An illustration of this is afforded by one employer who went to his office half an hour earlier than usual, his heart full of anticipatory joy at the prospect of finding the staff late. But they were there, and at work, and he was so annoyed at being deprived of an opportunity to find fault that he gave them a terrible time for the rest of the day.

Despicable? Yes! But that employer has a crowd for company, and perhaps among those who read this there may be some whose consciences tell them they are in the crowd.

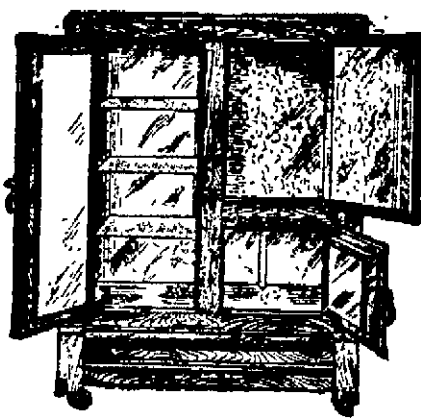

If so, they should get out of it!

Each of us makes a different contribution to life; but the greatest contribution of all is, within our sphere and opportunities, to render the lives of others as happy as possible. Those who suffer from "anoyitis" don't do this!

In the long run, too, they make their own lives miserable. For the man who marts is usually allowed to do it alone.

DORT SIX

HERE IS AN ENGINE!

A Sphinx for silence; a Niagara for power. It will do 60 without a whimper. It has climbed mountain roads in high. It will take corners without shifting. There isn't any vibration any time at any speed. Oil cushioned bearings work so quietly you scarcely hear them. It runs for only a few cents a mile. Repair bills are almost unknown. How long will it last? Frankly, we don't know, because we have never heard of one wearing out. Experts claim it to be one of the finest examples of a six-cylinder engine ever built. It is comparable only to the power plants of America's costliest cars—yet the Dort Six is a popular priced car.

The Mystery of an Old, Old Love Affair

By HAROLD CARTER

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

MRS AMANDA listened stonily to her niece Mary's confession of her engagement to the man she had met on her vacation at Bellmunt. Sympathetically, too, for the two old maiden ladies, Miss Amanda and Miss Dorothy, were devoted to pretty Mary the child of their only brother, whom they had adopted when he lay dying.
But when Mary mentioned the name of Ralph Lester an ominous look came over Miss Amanda's face.

"And he says his father knew you when you were a girl, Aunt Amanda," pursued Mary, with all the innocent confidence of twenty years.

Ralph Lester, in the city, received a despairing little note from his fiancée the following day which he could neither understand nor fathom.

The two old ladies realized Mary's sorrow and did their best to cheer her.

From timid Miss Dorothy the girl learned the cause of Miss Amanda's hostility. Miss Amanda had once been engaged to Ralph's father, Robert,
who had been dead some years.

And then, one afternoon, a fair, curly-haired young fellow rang the bell at the old house door and Miss Amanda, coming to open it, found herself looking into the face of her youthful sweetheart, Robert.

"You are Mr. Lester," the old woman asked, pressing one hand against her throbbing heart.

"Yes, and you must be Miss Amanda," answered the young man. "My father often used to speak of you."

"My niece is in the garden. You are at liberty to go to see her. You are at liberty to take her away, to marry her. But let me tell you that,
from the moment she becomes your wife, she shall never cross our threshold again or—" she hesitated. "I do not want to wrong you in my thoughts,
Mr. Lester, but she shall never inherit a penny of my money."

The young man rose. "May I ask why, Miss Amanda?" he inquired.
The memories of old days flushed the old maid's withered cheek. "Because," she answered slowly, "your father was engaged to me. He left me a few weeks before the wedding day."

She started. Mary stood at the door.
She had overheard all. She stood looking at Ralph, and he saw on her face that her love had never died. He started toward her.

"Mary, are you going to let the shadow of the past generation prevent our happiness?" he asked.

The girl went softly to her aunt and placed her hands upon her shoulders.
"Aunt, are you going to ruin our lives because your own was ruined?" she asked.

The old woman's face was like a mask. "As his father did to me, so shall I do to him," she answered.
"You can marry him—but my anger will never be assuaged."

Mary turned away. "You see, Ralph,
it is impossible," she answered quietly.

"Is there nothing can induce you to relent, Miss Amanda?" inquired Ralph Lester quietly. The old woman saw how bravely he bore the shock, and the thought of his suffering added fuel to her ancient hatred.

"Yes," she answered. "If Robert Lester sends me a message from the dead, explaining his actions, his cruel behavior to me, then I can forgive."

Through the door came little Dorothy, leaning upon a stick. She was holding a package in her hands. She crossed the floor to where her sister stood and knelt down at her side.

"Amanda—" she began.

"It is useless to plead for him, Dorothy," answered the old woman. "You know—who should know so well as you, when Robert Lester came to woo
you before he courted me?"

"And you took him from me. Was that no wrong, Amanda?" pleaded her sister.

Miss Amanda frowned impatiently.
"That is between you and me, Dorothy," she answered. "If I have wronged you in that, you have never borne me hate for it. You do not know the meaning of a ruined life;
nor a hot pillow wet with tears for a frustrated love."

Miss Dorothy rose to her feet, and her face was ashen pale. She held out the package toward her sister. Slowly, with trembling fingers, she unfastened the ribbon which bound it,
and the scent of faded perfume diffused itself through the room.

"These letters explain all," she said.
Miss Amanda uttered a gasp of fear. There were half a dozen unopened letters, in faded ink, and the handwriting of them, addressed to her,
was that of Robert Lester.

"This is why," said Miss Dorothy.
"I was jealous of you, Amanda. I hated you with a hatred which was to years as wine is to water. When Robert's letters came for you I hid them away. And your own letters, which you gave me to mail, I destroyed unopened. Now acquit Robert and turn your anger upon me, Amanda."

The mask had fallen from Miss Amanda's face. Her eyes were wet with tears.

"Let the past bury its dead, sister,"
she murmured. "I am glad you told me—told me at the last."

And the two old women wept in each other's arms. And Ralph Lester drew Mary's arm through his, and pressed his lips to hers.

Houston Knot-Hole Gang Must Be Good

Before a Houston boy can become a member of the Houston Knot-Hole Gang he must subscribe to the following agreement:

In becoming a member of the Houston Knot-Hole Gang, and in accepting passes to the games of the Buffaloes I agree that:

1 I will not at any time skip school to attend a game.

2 I will attend no game against the wishes of my parents or employer.

3 I will uphold the principles of clean speech, clean sports and clean habits, and will stand with the rest of the gang against cigarettes and profane language on the field.

I understand that a breaking of this agreement may cost me my membership in the Houston Knot-Hole Gang.

Spanish Tennis Star

Senorita E. de Alvarez, eighteen-year-old Spanish tennis star, will have to be reckoned with this summer among the woman players in the Olympics. She hopes to win quite a few points for Spain, especially in the mixed doubles, where coupled with Manuel Alonso, she will perform some whirlwind playing backed by Alonso's heady work.

Sport Notes

Boxing has been adopted at the Tokyo Imperial university in Japan.

Johnny Dundee's real name is Joseph Carrara. He was born in Italy.

Firpo may retire; perhaps he thinks the referee would let Dempsey use a hammer next time.

An exchange says Benny Valger is the hardest man in the ring to fight and the hardest to get fights for.

The shortest heavyweight fight on record was when Dempsey knocked out Fred Fulton in 18 seconds in 1918.

The first grand American handicap transhooting tournament was held in 1800 at the Interstate park, Queens, L. I.

That tennis wrangle should fix the distinction between bread-winning amateurs and cake-eating gentlemen of leisure.

One reason why golfers do not know the rules, says a man of the links, is that the golfers don't care enough about the rules to read them.

The annual regatta of the Canadian Canoe association will be held at Gananoque, Ont., Saturday, August 2, opening "Old Home week" there.

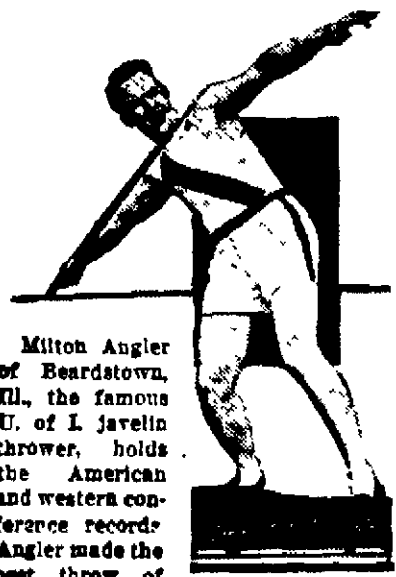

Right now Bob Jones, Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen are the three early favorites to set the pace in the national open golf championship at Detroit this summer.

It is reported that Benny Leonard no longer is lightweight champion of the world because he cannot make the lightweight limit of 135 pounds without a major operation.

For the third year consecutively Walter L. Cope has won the amateur golf championship of Porto Rico. He defeated Harold S. Graham 9 up, the match ending on the 27th hole.

E. L. Dollard has coached Syracuse basketball team 14 years. During the period the quintets won 153 games and lost 56. A run of 56 victories a few seasons in succession was his protégé's best record.

Is Olympic Possibility

Milton Angler of Beardtown, Ill., the famous U. of I. javelin thrower, holds the American and western conference records. Angler made the best throw of any American in the javelin contest at the Olympic games four years ago.

Heavy Pressure

A British scientist experimenting with a stream-line filter along which liquids passed under pressure through thousands of tightly packed, perforated paper sheets, took the color out of red wine and tea and milk, leaving instead of the last named a tasteless fluid, like water.

Diamond Notes

Professional baseball is fifty-two years old.

More baseball stars are produced in Pennsylvania than in any other state.

Ray Gilder, a pitcher with Vernon, has been sold to Shreveport of the Texas league.

George Sisler's Browns, slow in starting, appear to be working smoothly in high gear now.

Outfielder Daniel Williams, Red Sox recruit, has been sent to Bridgeport, of the Eastern league.

Roy Gilder, a pitcher, has been bought by Shreveport, from Vernon of the Pacific Coast league.

Pitcher Ranney Young of Bloomington has been indefinitely suspended for failure to sign a contract.

Johnny Jacobs, of Jersey City, joined the select circle of hitters to get six hits in as many times at bat in a game.

Molly Craft, veteran pitcher, has joined the Memphis Chickies. He was out of the game last year with a bad arm.

Syracuse of the International league has bought Frank Yeterel, an outfielder, from the Portland Pacific Coast league team.

Hal Rhyne, sensational young shortstop of the San Francisco team, has been laid up with an injury to his right hand.

Gus (Lefty) Goekel, southpaw pitcher, who has been with Baltimore since spring, has been claimed by Newark on waivers.

Riggs Stephenson, second baseman of the Indians, has been laid up with a wrenched knee, suffered in the series with the White Sox.

First Use of Money

While coins had been made and money used to some extent, it was not until Rome became a world power in the centuries just preceding Christ's birth that money became fluid and took an important place in affairs. It was also at this time that soldiers were first paid for their services.

Hilles Stays on Nat'l Committee

New York State Delegates at Cleveland Convention Unanimously Choose Him to Succeed Himself—Other Selections.

Ulster county Republicans are well satisfied with the action of the delegates attending the Republican national convention at Cleveland in unanimously selecting Charles D. Hilles to succeed himself as a member of the national committee. Mr. Hilles has served in this capacity for some time and is regarded as one of the outstanding figures of the party nationally as well as in the state.

United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., was selected as chairman of the New York delegation, with Ralph S. Bowen of Syracuse as vice chairman. Richard W. Lawrence, chairman of the county committee of Bronx county, was made secretary of the delegation.

New York state's representation on committee included the following:

Resolutions—Ogden L. Mills, New York.
Permanent Organization—Edward H. Butler, Erie county.
Rules—Miss Florence Wardwell, New York.

Would Select Mrs. Sabin.

If the rules committee change the rules whereby women would have equal representation on the national committee, the New York delegation expected to select Mrs. Charles H. Sabin for this honor. She is now associate member of the national committee from New York state.

A Ku Klux Resolution.

William Lieberman, a Brooklyn delegate, sought to have the state delegation adopt a resolution condemning "as inimical to the Republican form of government any infiltration of the rights secured by the constitutional guaranty to all citizens of equal opportunity, regardless of race, creed or color," but it was referred to Congressman Mills, of the resolution committee.

Barnes Retires, Inactive.

William Barnes of Albany, who for many years was county leader and held undisputed power in state politics, is attending the convention but not as a delegate. As late as 1920, Barnes was one of the leaders at whose conference which ended early in the morning the nomination of President Harding was agreed on. But this year, according to Chicago dispatches, Barnes sits solemn faced, inactive and uncommunicative.

Cling to Old Methods.

Among the New York delegation, it is stated, the impression prevails that President Coolidge already had made his choice known for the candidate for vice president, and that leaders were withholding the name to keep alive some interest in the convention.

Carnright for County Clerk

Says The Saugerties Post: Saugerties is likely to have a candidate for county office the coming fall, if plans now in the making fully materialize. The newly organized Democratic Club are putting forward John F. Carnright as their choice for the nomination of county clerk, and there is a strong possibility that the plum will come here. Mr. Carnright has the matter of acceptance under consideration. Should he decide affirmatively a lively campaign is promised in this burg.

Marriage in Papua

In western Papua marriage ceremonies and rites are as wild as the people. A man may buy a wife with pigs, but he prefers to steal her or carry her off by raiding other villages. Then, amidst the abominable mud flats, she is given an abode wherein to dwell. Hubby would never dream of living with his wife and children. He prefers to live in the vast clubhouse, called a ravia, which is set apart exclusively for married men.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, June 11.—The stock market was strong and active at the opening today, with railroad shares leading the way to higher price levels. Higher prices were also registered for the leading oil, steel and industrial stocks.

New Haven and the Missouri Pacific issues featured the railroad stocks. Steel and equipment stocks followed the lead of the rails. Oils were higher.

The buying movement in the better grade of dividend and non-dividend preferred stocks of standard railroad companies was continued in the first two hours of trading.

The market was cheerful and buying orders were on hand in volume to snap up all offerings at current prices. Low call money rates were again a factor in the speculative markets, the renewal rate of 2 per cent on call loans now being accepted as a matter of course.

New York Central was the leader of the dividend rails, pushing forward to a new high on the move at 103 1/2, on an unusually large volume of transactions.

There was a good demand for oil stocks, most of which also sold up into higher price territory.

Another mild spurt in the high priced industrial and specialty stocks featured the second hour. No weakness was apparent in any section of the speculative list.

Villa in Line for Goldstein Bout

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, June 11.—Pancho Villa, fly weight champion of the world, was in line today for a bout with Abe Goldstein, bantam weight title holder, following a clear cut victory last night over Bud Taylor of Terre Haute. It was the third bout between the pair and gave Villa two victories to his score.
Taylor could not solve the Filipino's crouch or get away from his terrific left counters and was severely punished about the body and face. In the first round Villa knocked out one of Bud's teeth and the latter's handlers were not able to check the flow of blood from the cavity. It bothered the westerner throughout the fight.

"Sick Men" of Game Hold Odd Reunion

Frank Chance back in Los Angeles, smiles as he tells of his brief experience in Chicago. "I went to the hospital to see Charley Comiskey the day I arrived," he said. "I was so sick that I could hardly walk."
"Well, I'm glad to see you," said the Old Roman. "Now you can take some of this worry off my hands."
"Well, I'm going to fool you," I retorted. "I'm sicker than you are. Move over and we'll whack up the bed!"

GROVER ALEXANDER RETAINS GREATNESS

Cub Star Has Never Finished Below .500 Mark.

There were just 12 major league hurlers to reach the 20-victory class in 1923. The National furnished seven of them. Luque, with 27 wins, led the pack in both leagues.

Outside of Grover Alexander, of the Cubs, and Urban Shocker, of the Browns, however, none has displayed any great degree of consistency in turning in 20 triumphs. Fact is that pitchers capable of that many victories over a season's stretch are fewer and farther between than in the old days. They are rare jewels now! The lively ball with the resultant heavy hitting has tended to curb the mastery of the moundmen to an appreciable degree, but even so, didn't Eddie Rynn take 27 games for the seventh-place Athletics two years ago, and didn't Howard Ehmke win 20 frays for the cellar Red Sox last season? Hence, the rabbit season can't be blamed for all the mediocre work of the gunners.

Let's glance at the record of Alexander of the Cubs. Alexander came up to the big tent in 1911. He's been in 13 major league campaigns—quite a stretch, as pitchers go. Last year Alex won 22 games. But the performance was nothing new to the veteran. Winning more than 20 bouts a season has been his specialty.

Alexander, in his 13 big league campaigns, has passed the 20-mark in games won eight times. Another time he came in with 19 triumphs. In one of those years—1918—he entered the service, working in but three tilts. In the other three seasons he won 16 battles twice, and 15 once.

Let's go further. For three consecutive years—1915-16-17—Alexander won more than 30 games each campaign. He had 31 wins in 1915, 38 in 1916, and 30 in 1917. All told, he grabbed 94 tilts in a three-year sweep. Where are hurlers nowadays dishing up a menu of that particular brand? They aren't.

And further—Alexander, in all the years he's been playing big time, has never finished a campaign below the .500 mark. Few pitchers can point to such a record along a trail as lengthy as that of Alexander's.

Morgan Won Southpaw Duel

Tuesday Against Dillard, of the D. & H. Generals—McCue Led Colonial Battery and Dewey Scintillates in Field.

After the first two innings of yesterday's game between the D. & H. Generals and Colonials, "Lefty" Dillard and Jack Morgan saged as pretty a southpaw duel as one could wish to watch. The Generals got their one run in the first inning and the Colonials got the two winning markers in the second session. Morgan was a bit wild but his wildness didn't get him in trouble except in the first inning. In seven of the nine innings the Generals went out in order.

Bernie McCue, third baseman, who made history with the Colonials last season, made his first appearance this season in a local uniform and he made good as a "first nighter." It was his lucky hit, no less a hit because it was lucky, that put the Colonials in a scoring position after Raskin had walked in the second inning.

Flynn was at short in yesterday's game and he sure can cover his bit of ground between third and second. Nelse Dewey has been staging a great comeback since his return to second base and he pulled the two most spectacular plays of the game. Maltie Deegan was behind the bat, McLaughlin having to play with the New York University team, and Maltie corralled Morgan's shots in very creditable fashion.

The game lacked the pepper and dash of most Colonial-D. & H. games but nevertheless, it was a battle from start to finish. Eddie opened the game by working Morgan for a walk. Sandy Herbst, Eddie, Jr., at second, Kelly Herbst singled through short when Flynn went to cover second as Sandy made a break for the bag. Sandy reached third on the hit and came home on Schermerhorn's long fly to Schwab. Hickey fanned, leaving Herbst on second.

"Tubby" Raskin was given a free ticket to first in the second inning. McCue got a big hand coming to bat for the first time this year. He responded by tapping one of Dillard's offerings and rolling the ball to Dower. It looked like a sure double killing but just as Dower was about to scoop up the ball it took a nasty hop over his shoulder and went for a scratch hit, both runners being safe.

Nelse Dewey, who played a stellar role in last evening's game, stung a hard liner to left field scoring Raskin and putting McCue on third. Dewey took a long lead off first and McNamee pegged to catch him off the bag. Schermerhorn let the ball get by him and McCue scored from third with the winning run. Schwab laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt putting Dewey in a scoring position but Coyie flied to Sandy and Morgan was out on a hot shot to Dillard.

The fourth inning was the last in which more than three men faced Morgan. The Generals got one man on the bases after this inning.

The win yesterday gives the Colonials the edge in the series. The Generals took the opening game in a fine eleven inning struggle and the Colonials handed Phelps & Co. a shutout on their second visit here.
